House of Representatives, Monday, was one he Mr. Boutwell, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell $2,000,000 of gold every Moobay, in parcels not exceeding $25,000 such. One-fifteenth of one per cert, is the commission allowed to the persome making the sale-which would give $1,333 33 for the half hour's work.

Mr. Secretary McCulloch recommends to Congress that the National Banks be com- lowing paragraph in its market report of pelled to redeem their notes at the Atlantic cities, or what would be better, at a single enty. As his argument in favor of this proposition will be interesting to bankers, we perroduce it here as follows:

The object of Congress in the establishment. the National backing system was to furnish the people with a solvent currency of uniform value throughout the United States. The solvency of he notes of the National Banks is secured by beposits of bonds with the Treasurer at Washington; but, as the banks are scattered throughout the country, and many of them are in place difficult of secons, a redemption of their manual transporting equitors is not all that quired to make them, throughout the States, a par circulation. It is true that all notes of all National Banks are receivable for a subble dues, except duties upon imports, in most to paid by the Treasurer in case the bank which issued are unable to redeem them, but will not be claimed that the notes of bank distance in properly solvent, but singular in will not be claimed that the notes of banks, although perfectly solvent, but situated in inaction towns, are practically as valuable as the motes of banks in the scabbard cities.

It may be urged that, to compet remote banks thus to redeem, would be a hardship; but as very few well-managed banking institutions in the limited States fail to keep accounts and balances a some of the Atlantic cities, this hardship would be found, upon trial, to be imaginary, what than real. But if it should be a hardship, I would be a necessary one, and the interests of the banks must bend to the interests of the peode. Beside, without such redemption, there will ole. Beside, without such redemption, there we be practically none at all, at least until speciredemptions, there is always a constant tendent to inflation and illegitimate banking. The fre great and regular return of their notes is neede consists and regard records of the banks in a healthy condition, and thus invariably proves no less advantageous to the stockholders than to the public. Unless the banks shall be compelled to refeem in United States notes, many of them will another lend their influence in favor of a return the specie payments, nor be prepared for them when without their agency specie payments shall be brought about. If the determination of the agestion was left to the Segretary, all the batts award be required to redects in New York, the acknowledged commercial metropolis of the Union. The designation of that city as the re-d seming point for all National Banks would no deciming point for all National banks would not unify give absolute uniformity to their circulation, but would so facilitate the asserting and resemble of notes that practical and general recemption would be enforced. It is certain that chas will not be done under the existing provisions of the law it is not certain that it will be autered. The much the objected to be a second to the law it is not certain that it will be a second to the law it. hanks in other Atlantic cities on the ground to by hanks in other Atlantic cities on the ground to it would agrandize New York at their expenditure. The Work is already the financial and concretal emportum of the Union. Most of the mercial emportum of the Union. Most of the a terior banks keep their chief balances in the sty, because they are more available and valsays the loss market is more active at use per calle there than elsewhere, and in compelling all the hanks to redeem all the metropolis of trade. Congress would be only yielding to an anwritten but controlling law to which statutes should controlled the country law to a constitute a market is not very positive and may give place shortly to a current a different direction. An increased demand for currency at the West, to move the hog crop, has also sprung up during these must always constitute a majority) to keep their chief balances in New York, whether they code direct or not.

The Secretary of the Treasury also recommends the curtailment of the currency is exhibited trade, and he advises the with-drawal from circulation of legal tender sates and that the furnishing of what paper serrency may be required be left to corporstmus, under existing laws and such amendments of these laws as experience may distate for the better protection and advancement of the public interest. He

Most rapidly they may be retired must de-mend upon the effect which contrastion may nave upon business and industry, and can be retizer determined as the work progresses. The eduction could probably be increased from four millions ter month, as contemplated by the ac-id April 12, 1506, to six millions per month for the present fiscal year, and to ten millions per ments thereafter, without preventing a steady suversion of the interest-bearing notes into winds, or injuriously affecting legitimate basi-sees. No determinate scale of reduction would, however, in the present condition of our affairs. the waver, in the present condition of our affairs, the subvisable. The policy of contracting the circulation of government notes should be definitely and unchanges by established, and the process desaid go on just as rapidly as possible without resulting a financial crisis or seriously embarrasing those branches of industry and trade upon which our revenues are dependent. There is great adaptability in the business of the Poited States, and it will easily accommodate update any policy which the government may restains a financial crisis or seriously embarization these branches of industry and trade are which our revenues are dependent. There is great adaptability in the business of the Poirted States, and it will easily accommodate welf to any poircy which the government may adapt. That the policy indicated is the true and safe one, the Secretary is thoroughly convinced. It is shall not be speedily adopted and readily lewer, at 20142-10c. Freights unchanged.

Publico,

IT IS AN ENTIRELY NEW BREADSTUFF, unlike any other ever introduced in America, possessing the following merits over other varieties, and peculiar alone to idself; it will ripen as far North as Boston, planted even the lat of August; hence other varieties will not mix with it. It is estimated, from its very proline qualities, to yield 150 bushels per agree on rich lands; the yield, however, is flattering on any variety of soil. It weighs by scaled measure (85) to yield 150 bushels persere on rich lands; the yield however, is flattering on my variety of soil. It weighs, by scaled measure, 55% pounds to the bushel. It grows in the form of a tree, and thirty-four spikes have grown upon one stalk on thin soil? For domestic use it is unparalleled. When ground and boited, it is equal in color and fineness to wheaten flour. As a forage crop, by sowing in drills or broadcast, for early feed, there is no kind of corn so well adapted to mich cows, and none that will yield half the value in fadder or corn.
